

A VICTORY AT ST. ALBANS

Spaulding High Won Yesterday, 4 to 2.

IN A WELL PLAYED GAME

Beth Fisher and Cutler Pitched Well for Winners, Griggs Batted Hard and Smith Whipped the Ball About the Bases Fast.

St. Albans, May 31.—In the presence of 2,000 people, Spaulding high school yesterday defeated St. Albans high school by the score of 4 to 2. During the game, the St. Albans brass band furnished music, and the members of the local militia officiated as patrolmen. The game throughout was extremely close and exciting. Neither side scored until the seventh inning. Then, Williams scored home, after Holland's catch of a foul fly, and Hagan followed with the second run. St. Albans tied it up in the eighth, Baker and Kennedy scoring. In the first half of the ninth, Kennedy reached first on an error, stole second and scored on Stuart's two-bagger. The next man up, Griggs, got his third hit and scored Stuart from second. St. Albans came back strong and with two men on base and none out Cutler was pulled in from center field to replace Fisher, and the side was retired without a score. Once before, in the fifth inning, Cutler was pulled in from center and although St. Albans had men on second and third, with none out, he succeeded in retiring the three men who faced him, in one, two, three order. But in spite of this substitution, Fisher pitched five ball in the other innings. Griggs batted like a fiend, Smith whipped the ball around the bases in splendid style and Hagan, in spite of two errors, fielded well. The score:—

PAST GAME FOR I. A. C.

Defeated Dartmouth Independents, 2 to 0, Saturday Afternoon.

In one of the best played games of the season, the Italian Athletic club added a shutout to its growing string of victories, Saturday, at Rangers' field, by defeating the Dartmouth Independents 2 to 0, with the score on the 0-0 line, the former Goddard twirler, was in the box for the collegians and pitched good ball, though Weaver had the best end of the deal throughout the game, pitching a better game and receiving steadier support.

The Italian's first score came in the second, when Rosini, the first man up, struck the spheroid for two sacks, scoring later on Weaver's single into left and an error by Hoban. Weaver was caught at home and Broggi, next up, struck out, but Malerini got a life at first on Riford's error. He was followed by Tonazzi, who reached first on a fielder's choice, but both were left, as Francisco struck out. Except for the third, when Comelli got a base on balls and scored on a wild throw past second, no more scores were made.

The work of both the local infield and outfield plainly outclassed that of their opponents, and this, with Weaver's superior pitching, accounts for the result. Fast infielding by Malerini, Lee and Langdell, with good stick work by Hoban, Calagni and Rosini featured the game.

Where Surgery Fails

Cutting Won't Remove the Cause of Piles.

Piles mean more than merely the pain of the stubborn little tumors. There is a condition inside that must be dealt with. Cutting is usually followed with later and worse attacks. A permanent cure can only be made by bettering the condition of the parts and getting a free circulation of the blood.
Hem-Roid cures all kinds of piles by internal action right on the cause. Sold by Burt H. Wells, Barre, Vt., and money back if it fails. $1 per bottle. Dr. Leachman, Station B, Buffalo, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, relieves that tired feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, nervousness, builds up the whole system. Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolate tablets called Sarsatabs.

Is 2 at Rangers' field Monday forenoon. Several members of the visiting team failed to make train connections, so that a number of local players went in to make out a full team for the Ineligibles. After the second inning, Armstrong was hit by a ball while his teammates, with the exception of one hit, were unable to solve Scampini's delivery. The game was called at the seventh inning on account of rain.

Score by innings:—
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Vt. Ineligibles.....0 1 0 0 0 0 1-2 15
Barre Independents.....0 1 0 2 1 1-12 8 4
Summary: Batteries, Armstrong and Perkins; Scampini and Perry; struck out, by Armstrong 3, by Scampini 10; first base on balls, off Armstrong 2, off Scampini 3; two-base hits, Haggie 2, McKennzie 2; time of game, 1:20; umpire, Keefe.
The afternoon game between the two teams, played at the driving park, resulted in another victory for the Independents, the score standing 10 to 2, the contest going the entire nine innings. The wet ground made fast ball impossible. In the first inning Perkins, the visiting catcher, was hit over the eye with a ball thrown from field and was taken out of the game. He was replaced by Dombrowski, who caught the remainder of the game. Lee, the Goddard twirler, pitched good ball for the Independents and received good support. The poor condition of the field seemed to freeze the visitors, and a good share of the runs made by the locals were unearned.

GODDARD TOOK A GAME.

Defeated Dartmouth Independents Yesterday, 4 to 2.

Goddard's victory over the Dartmouth Independents at Intercity park yesterday morning in a fast and exciting game, by the score of 4 to 2. Smith's pitched game in the box for the seminary boys contributed largely to the visitors' defeat. The batteries were Olsen and Hoban for the Independents, Smith and Goddard for the feature of the game was a one-handed catch by Dartmouth and a one-handed catch by White in the sixth inning, which would otherwise have been good for three sacks.

CORNELL WINS FROM HARVARD.

Both Varsity and Freshmen Crews Outrow Harvard.

Boston, Mass., May 31.—Sixteen strong-armed Cornell oarsmen swept Charles river yesterday, the varsity crew defeating Harvard in a beautiful race by a full length, while the freshmen completely outclassed the crimson-eight, winning by six lengths. Cornell's short, choppy stroke proved superior to Harvard's long rhythmic swing. The Harvard oarsmen seemed to have plenty of power, but for some reason Stroke Out was content with an even 32 from start to finish and although this led Cornell for the first mile in rough water, in the last half of the race, Cornell's swift paddles and numerous spurts drove their shell steadily away and there was a bit of open water between the boats as they darted across the line.
The time was Cornell 11:25, Harvard 11:27. In the freshmen race, it was Cornell 11:15, Harvard 11:24.

CURTIS RESTS AFTER FLIGHT

Aviator in Biplane Covers 150 Miles

FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

Travels at 54-mile Rate, Exceeding the Speed of Fastest Limited Train, and Time of Panhandle in London-Manchester Trip.

New York, May 31.—Glenn H. Curtiss, tired out by his record aeroplane flight, stayed in his room at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning, resting. He left orders not to be disturbed. It was said he had earned his holiday, though he might answer questions later.

After the official figures got at his records yesterday, it appeared that Curtiss' flight from Albany, Sunday, covered 137 miles in 102 minutes, with but one stop at Poughkeepsie, before he landed within New York City limits.

He dropped at Spuyten Duyvil, and then added, say, 13 miles in just 18 minutes more, going down to Governors Island.

His actual total distance and time in air figured up just about 150 miles in 170 minutes. But the first stop upturned cinched the record and a $10,000 prize.

The date of May 30, 1910, which was Sunday, is going to be a historic date in the annals of the Hudson river, and no less in the history of aviation. Only one flight has so far been made by aeroplane in any respect overshadowing that of Sunday. The distance from London to Manchester, made on the night of April 27-28 of this year, or just a month and a day before Curtiss' achievement, Puffin's total distance covered was 135 miles. Of this distance he flew 117 miles without stopping, so his feat seems to have a little the better of it over Curtiss' in the matter of distance, if not in time and other features.

Curtiss rose from the tide of hats of Van Rensselaer island, at Albany, at 7:05 o'clock Sunday morning in the smallest biplane that has figured seriously in the world's great flights, sped upward to a height of 1000 feet, maintained it for 40 miles, swung then over the Catskills at a far greater height, once attaining a maximum of almost 3000 feet, dropped down above the Hudson waters for another 40 miles, and landed finally at Governor's island at noon.

He had covered 150 miles in an actual flying time of 2 hours and 46 minutes, and had won the New York World prize of $10,000.

The flight, which sets a new mark in the conquest of the air, was made in the conquest of a territory presenting a great variety of perils, far greater than any other stretch that aviators have tried. Wide canyons, high cliffs, eddying currents and reverse currents shooting out of gulches into the Hudson valley all played their part. One stretch made Curtiss fight every inch of his way, while his tiny craft tossed and pitched like a yacht in a hurricane. Through the difficult places, which include the treacherous Storm King pass, Curtiss pumped oil into his craft so plentifully that a long blue haze hung out behind him, fanning itself into shape behind like a comet's tail.

Curtiss' average speed was 54.15 miles an hour, which is equal to a mile in every minute and six seconds. Curtiss, who has raised his name to a sort of kinship with those of Hudson and Fulton all in a morning, is a man somewhat under 40, with a record as a clever mechanic, a builder of gasoline engines, and a prudent and successful aviator. He went over to France just after the time when the foreign aviators were distancing the Wright's records and there captured all records for air speed.

Curtiss was no hero Sunday morning, at 7 o'clock. Far from it. It was true that triumph lay only a few hours away. But the feeling at that moment was anything but favorable to the man who had given notice some days before that he would fly from Albany to New York.

Curtiss hadn't flown. It seems odd to look back on now, but it is none the less true that there had been some pretty loud grumbling against Curtiss.

EX-MAYOR HIBBARD DEAD.

Former Executive of Boston, Who Saved City Large Sums, Succumbs.

Boston, May 31.—Former Mayor George A. Hibbard of this city died late Sunday of tuberculosis at his home in the Ashmont district, aged forty-five years.

It was at the close of his unsuccessful campaign for re-election last December that the former mayor found himself suffering from the disease which caused his death, and his fight for life against hard odds aroused the sympathy of the city. His successful opponent at the polls, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, recently appointed Mr. Hibbard city collector. The appointment failed of approval by the civil service commission.

Serving as a non-partisan mayor, although elected as a Republican, Mr. Hibbard went out of office with wealth gone and antagonized by many influential interests, but claiming to have saved the city $2,500,000 during his two years' service.

For eight years he was postmaster of Boston.

KAISER'S WOUND.

Surgeons Say That It Is Progressing Favorably.

Berlin, May 31.—The surgeons announced yesterday morning that they found the wound in the Kaiser's right wrist, which was caused by the bite of an insect, and which was lanced on Saturday, to be progressing in a normal manner. They said that there was no reason to fear any complications.

For the Woman Who Walks.

"The costume worn on trampolining expeditions should be a lamping costume and nothing else," says Louise Strimpton in Suburban Life for June. "It is impossible to take tramps in conventional garments, as a woman in the woods in ordinary clothes is hopelessly handicapped, and cannot undertake climbing walls or walking through underbrush. There is, besides, an incongruity between nature and fashion that lays upon the woman who loves harmony. A short skirt, a sweater, and, in cold weather, a loose jacket, with a soft felt hat or cap, and low-heeled shoes or boots, constitute a good suit for walking. A cotton material, resembling khaki in appearance, is impervious to moisture, and admits of tramping in the rain without an umbrella. The heavy woolen material often recommended for trampers will catch on brambles and burs, and is rather too thick for comfort in ordinary weather, but a close-weave woolen stuff in mixed colors may be used to advantage."

RED HEADS

Whenever You See a Woman with Lustrous Auburn Hair, You Can Wager That She Uses Parisian Sage.

The girl with the auburn hair is on every bottle and every carton of Parisian Sage. But that isn't why all the lovely girls with the brilliant and fascinating profusion of auburn hair always recommend Parisian Sage.

They know, as do thousands of their dark-haired sisters, there is no preparation for the hair that can compare with Parisian Sage. The hair sales throughout America this last year were nothing less than phenomenal.

It will stop dandruff in any man's or woman's hair in two weeks or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp almost magically.

A wonderful ability to turn harsh, dull, faded hair that many women possess into luxuriant radiant and fascinating hair in a few weeks.

It is a delicately perfumed tonic that refreshes and invigorates feeling to the head the minute it is applied. Rub it in; it will make your hair grow.

Fifty cents for a large bottle at drug-gists everywhere; and at the Red Cross Pharmacy. After using one bottle of Parisian Sage, the ordinary tonic will never please you again. Mail orders filled, charges prepaid, by American Mfg. Co., Grosse Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

BYERS, INDICTED GRAFTER, SAID TO BE NOT SO DEAD

Multi-Millionaire Was Buried All Right, but He Is Said to Be Living in Retirement in French Village.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 28.—The declaration that Dallas C. Byers, multi-millionaire steel manufacturer and indicted grafter, who was supposed to have died in France last August and whose funeral was held in this city months ago, is really alive and enjoying life in a secluded French village, is made here.

A. Leo Wall, president of the Pittsburg Voters' league, which has pushed the communitarian bribery investigation, says that reports of his detective in France and Switzerland prove this.

Among the facts which lend color to the report are: Byers turned his stocks and bonds and real estate into cash before slipping away from Pittsburg and the bribery investigation. He realized something like $14,000,000.

He left directions for the distribution of his remaining realty among relatives, making it unnecessary to leave a will. He permitted all his life insurance policies to lapse.

No one in Pittsburg saw the body over which services were held and which was buried with due honors in a Pittsburg cemetery. The casket was tightly sealed in France.

It was not long after his flight from Pittsburg that dispatches were received from Dinard, France, stating that the steel millionaire had suffered a stroke of apoplexy. On August 25, the word came that he had died.

In some manner the suspicion of Byers' relatives, who were disappointed in the disposal he made on his property, was aroused, and a hint was dropped to the officials of the Voters' league.

Detectives were put to work immediately, and they went through France with a fine-toothed comb. The search is said to have disclosed unmistakable evidence of the missing steel man. The Voters' league will shortly be in position it is said, to demand extradition papers for Byers and have him brought back for trial.
